

SADIQ KHAN: WHAT ABOUT THE CLEANERS?

Low paid workers in London are the most vulnerable to the exploitation of contracting out.

The RMT demand a Labour Mayor brings a halt to the profiteering and abuse of London's workers by private contractors on London Underground.

The capitalist cleaning companies have bled London dry with their sharp practices, enforced self employment for workers designed to circumnavigate statutory rights of annual leave, SSP, maternity leave and pensions.

This practice of using self employed workers is known as "disguised employees" and is rife among these companies, who are taking millions of pounds of taxpayers money. But give little back to either London or its workers.

Workers attending the same place of work day in day out are NOT self employed. They are and should be classed as employees, with the associated employment protections we all enjoy.

The RMT say enough is enough.
