Welcome to the RMT Jubilee South branch

The National Union of Rail, Maritime & Transport Workers is a trade union of around 80,000 workers just like you including our colleagues across London Underground as well as many more people on London Transport and in the wider transport industry across the country.

As the UK's largest transport union, we stand strong against the boss's attacks, support one another when we face issues in the workplace, and fight successfully for better pay and conditions.

This leaflet explains what the branch is, why you should get involved, who your rep is and why you might need them.

Solidarity wins!

When do I need an RMT rep?

You are entitled to take a rep to any meetings with management whilst you are off sick, at LDIs and CDIs with adequate preparation time to be done on LUL time, at case conferences, grievances, fact finding interviews or any meeting where your future is being discussed.

If management say you don't need a rep then you should ask why they don't want one there.

Involve the union as soon as possible if there is an issue. Your local rep and RMT Jubilee South branch are here to help you.

Meetings where you should be accompanied by an RMT rep include:

- ✓ Local Disciplinary (LDI)
- ✓ Company Disciplinary (CDI)
- ✓ Sick Review
- ✓ Case Conference
- ✓ Fact Finding
- ✓ Probation review
- ✓ PTOA
- ✓ Flexible working request
- ✓ Any other meetings with bosses
- ✓ Formal or 'informal'; check first!

Which branch am I in? Jubilee South!

Members of the RMT are organised into branches based on the location they work. On London Transport there are several branches for London Underground, as well as a DLR branch, Taxi branch and branches for LUL Fleet and LUL Engineering workers.

You are a member of Jubilee South branch if you are in the RMT and work in the following locations:

- On stations from Stratford to Westminster
- At Stratford or North Greenwich train crews
- In the SMD control tower
- In the canteen at Stratford
- As a cleaner in any of the above locations

If you are unsure of your branch, contact branch secretary Eamonn Lynch. His details are in this leaflet.

What is the branch for?

The branch is the cornerstone of the RMT and the interface between the individual member and the rest of the union, helping members to find their way through the union's structures and bureaucracy; providing assistance and advice and the opportunity to participate in the union at all levels.

That could mean, for example, debating the latest pay claim, getting reports on local issues from our reps, determining ways to assist a colleague in difficulty or considering wider political issues that are affecting our jobs or lives.

The branch may pass a motion on a subject. This is a written submission of the branches view or a request for support or action which then gets sent to our region to debate or to our executive committee who will make a decision on how the union will act. A motion that you bring to branch, could become policy of the entire union.

RMT Jubilee South branch details

Jubilee South branch meetings are held each pay day at 1600 at the Blue Eyed Maid which is on Borough High Street. The nearest station is London Bridge.

You can confirm these details with your local rep or by contacting Branch Secretary Eamonn Lynch.

How can I get involved with the RMT?

Coming to branch for the first time needn't be nerve racking! You are more than welcome to just come and watch what other RMT members are discussing. And remember after the branch meeting is a social event too.

Of course, Our union only gets stronger the more involved you and other members become, and there are plenty of ways to get more active.

Come along and join us at the next Jubilee South branch meeting.
