SHE NEEDED SUPPORT NOT DISMISSAL

WHITE CITY TRAIN OPERATOR DISMISSED FOLLOWING RETURN TO WORK AFTER A BRAIN ANEURYSM

SERIOUS ILLNESS
Lora suffered a brain aneurysm and began her recovery.

RETURN TO WORK TOO EARLY
She was forced back to work far too early while still recovering, with her sick pay at risk of being stopped.

ALTERNATIVE DUTIES
She was placed on alternative duties but continued to experience severe fatigue due to the medication she was taking.

MANAGEMENT SCRUTINY
Management scrutiny included downloading CCTV, examining Oyster card usage, signing on sheets and repeated calls to Station Supervisors to check on Lora and others.

TARGETED AND SACKED
Following a flawed investigation, Lora was put on a Company Disciplinary Interview and has now been dismissed. Central Line West Branch believes she was targeted and ultimately dismissed because of circumstances arising from her disability, rather than being properly supported during her recovery.

RECOVERING FROM A SERIOUS ILLNESS AND HAVING A DISABILITY SHOULD BE MET WITH SUPPORT NOT PUNISHMENT

SUPPORT LORA | SUPPORT DISABLED WORKERS | DEMAND FAIR TREATMENT
