

Save the date...

LGBT History Month 2013 Pre-Launch

15th November 2012

All day event at Bletchley Park, Home of the Codebreakers, Bletchley, Milton Keynes.

A whole day celebrating the life of Alan Turing and investigating the role of maths, science and engineering in the past, the present and the future.

OBJECTIVES

- To raise the profile of Alan Turing
- To raise the profile of LGBT people in science, maths and engineering
- To increase the profile of LGBT people in education

The morning will have educational and LGBT related activities for schools.

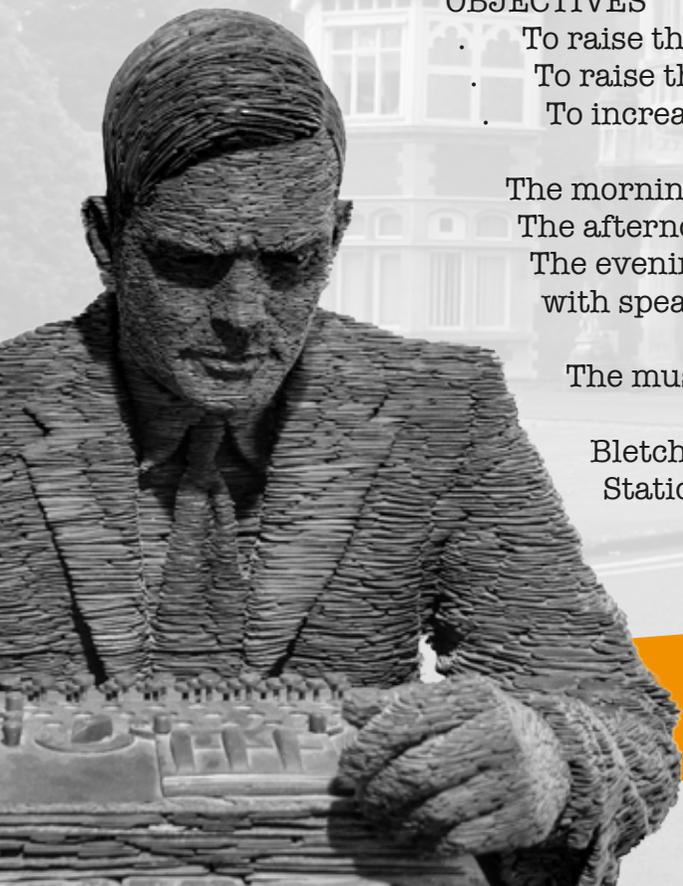

The afternoon will have activities for university students including a lively debate.

The evening will be a networking and sit-down event focusing on our themes of maths and science, with speakers and entertainment.

The museum will be open to the public all afternoon.

Bletchley Park is opposite Bletchley railway station, a short train ride away from London's Euston Station. Click the link for transport information: www.londonmidland.com/your-journey/timetables

To order free tickets click here:
www.eventbrite.co.uk/event/2262814138

The National Union of Teachers is the main sponsor of this event

